

HOMES AND SHOPS TO BE REACHED IN BAPTIST REVIVALS

Dr. Bruner, With 25 Aids, Opens
Great Evangelistic Campaign to Continue Month.

WORKERS FILL 15 PULPITS

Rev. R. A. Carroll, of Columbia,
S. C., Says 58 Colored Congregations Are Joining.

Twenty-five evangelists of the Baptist church, under the personal direction of the Rev. Dr. William Bruner, superintendent of the department of evangelism of the Baptist Mission Board, began today what they hope will be the greatest series of revival services ever held in the Baptist churches of Washington.

The services are to be carried into the homes and the shops of the city, and will be conducted by the best-known ministers and singers of the denomination. The campaign will continue at least a month, and probably longer, with daily services at the various points to be designated by Dr. Bruner and his assistants, and with a daily meeting and sermon at the Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and C streets.

Fill Fifteen Pulpits.

Preparations for the revival have been under way more than a week, and yesterday the corps of evangelists assembled for the campaign occupied the pulpits of the fifteen Washington Baptist churches. Dr. Bruner, who was at one time the pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church here, occupied his old pulpit and greeted his old friends. At the West Washington Church, where the Rev. F. D. King, of Charlotte, N. C., conducted the services, thirty-four new members were received into the church and reports were made this morning of additions to most of the churches.

The first of the active campaign meetings at Calvary Church this morning was called to order at 10 o'clock by Dr. Bruner, and the Rev. Richard A. Carroll, of Columbia, S. C., represented in the colored Baptist churches, announced that fifty-eight of the colored churches of the city were combining in the campaign.

Wideawake Workers Needed.

The sermon today was preached by the Rev. W. M. Anderson, of Birmingham, Ala., who spoke of the need of activity, constant and productive, on the part of the people engaged in the revival work. He said the Christian religion needs workers who are serious, awake to the necessities of the task before them, and that success only awaits those who are active in their endeavors. Music was furnished this morning by a male quartet of singing evangelists that included A. L. Taylor, of Asheville, N. C.; W. P. Martin, of Lynchburg, Va.; J. L. Blankenship, of Dallas, Tex.; and J. P. Schofield, of Birmingham, Ala.

The meetings in the shops and streets will be outlined by the committee in charge this evening. They will be the daily meetings at Calvary Baptist Church at 10:30 every morning.

Woman and Man Who Killed Her Are Buried

Both of the victims of the double tragedy enacted Friday in the little store at New Cut and Conduit roads, when Benjamin Shreve, sixty-five, killed Mrs. Katherine Kuffer, thirty, and then committed suicide, were buried today.

Mass was said for Mrs. Kuffer, formerly an actress of Budapest, wife of Armin Kuffer, in Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown, early today. Funeral services followed in the chapel of George W. White, who was buried in Holy Road Cemetery.

Funeral services were held for Shreve at his home in Foxhall road, near Rockville road, following the services, his body was taken to Baltimore, Va., for burial in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

No Crime to Kiss Girl, Declares Judge in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—City Magistrate Joseph R. Hand, sitting at Manhattan, Staten Island, said he could find nothing in the statute books which prohibits a young man from kissing a girl, and discharged Linwood Jacob, nineteen, of Tottenville, who had been arraigned on a charge of having kissed the morals of Anita E. Rowe, fifteen, also of Tottenville.

Jacob was summoned to court on complaint of Joseph Curran, an agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Miss Rowe testified that Jacob, whom she has known for a long time, accompanied her to her home one evening recently and remained with her for several hours, she admitted without a smile that he had kissed her and that in turn she had kissed him. She said she did not think she had done anything wrong.

"I do not see that Jacob committed any criminal act," said the magistrate, "although he might have been indiscreet, and as I cannot find anything in the statute books which prohibits a young man from kissing a girl, I discharge the prisoner."

Little Girl Would Play Wilson Wedding March

Eight-Year-Old Musician's
Friends Will Seek to Have Her Offer Accepted.

PLAN WHITE HOUSE RECITAL

Parents of Jesalyn Payne Want
Her to Display Talent on Piano in East Room.

A wee slip of a girl wants to play
"Here Comes the Bride" at the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Thaw.

She is Jesalyn Anna Payne, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Payne, of Campbell, Mo., and is an accomplished musician for her age.

The youthful prodigy's father is a thirty-third-degree Mason and came here to attend the dedication of the new Scottish Rite Temple and the sessions of the supreme council. He brought his wife and daughter with him. At the Pennsylvania avenue hotel in which they stopped a number of persons were attracted to the parlor by the finished playing of popular and classic music on a piano.

Arriving at the parlor they found a very small girl with big blue eyes and a huge bow of pink ribbon on top of her tawny head manipulating the keys with the abandon of a virtuoso. They remained until she finished her morning practice and then congratulated her on her ability as a musician. The suggestion was made that she play a wedding march, whereupon she played the "Lohengrin" music with expression and daintiness.

Those who composed the audience then asked if she would like to play at the wedding of the President and Mrs. Galt, and she immediately replied that she would be delighted.

I have never played at a wedding, but I would love to play the march when President Wilson takes a bride," said Miss Payne. "It makes me happy to play the piano at any time, and it would be the highest pleasure in the world to play when other people were happy, too. I would love to stay in Washington until the wedding day and play anything they wanted played."

The little girl's admirers said they would exert their best efforts to have her offer accepted. She was taken to the White House recently by her mother and father, who were anxious for her to demonstrate her ability on the piano in the East Room, but they arrived too late to see Secretary Tumulty. Another effort to arrange a White House recital by the little girl may be made before Mr. and Mrs. Payne return to Missouri.

The father said today that his tiny daughter manifested musical talent when three years old, picking out tunes on a baby piano which Santa Claus brought her. A short time later a big, sure enough piano was purchased for her, and she began the serious study of music at an early age.

He said he had a bright future for her as a pianist.

SUFFRAGISTS CALL FOR AID FROM MEN

They've Just Got to Have 'Em
for Susan B. Anthony Pageant in December.

"Men Wanted At Once."

This is the wording of a large sign placed in front of headquarters of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, 129 P street, today.

Since its organization three years ago the Union has been a busy organization, and its members have conducted various activities without the aid of the opposite sex. In fact, they have taken a certain amount of pride in demonstrating that woman can do as well or better than man. But today they realize that this is not altogether true, and they are crying out for help as much as their sisters, the "antia" would under similar circumstances.

The men are wanted to take part in the Susan B. Anthony pageant to be presented in Convention Hall early in December, and unless they are found "there just won't be any pageant," according to Miss Hazel MacKay, who wrote the pageant and who is now busily engaged making ready for its presentation.

"We will need at least 50 men," said Miss MacKay. "We will want men of all ages, some young, some middle-aged and some old men in order to make the pageant the success that we plan to make it. The men ought to look upon it as a pleasure and a privilege to help us, and we will not ask them to do very much work. A rehearsal one night a week for about four weeks and then to take part in the production itself, is all that we will ask of them. And they may have the satisfaction of knowing that, in this case at least, we are absolutely helpless without them; for that reason, if for no other, they should come to our assistance."

If the necessary men do not come forward, will you, as women, come to the aid of the men? said Miss MacKay. "Of course not," said she. "That would be absurd. A woman can do almost anything a man can do, but she can't be one."

"But we don't want just any and every kind of man who comes along," she continued. "We will want men of good character and good looks, and all must be intelligent."

"We will be at least 25 women in the pageant and among them will be some of the most beautiful in Washington. That ought to prove an attraction."

Men who desire to lend their assistance to the suffragists are requested to call at 129 P street and register. Rehearsals will begin next week.

INTERNEED DOCTOR IS BACK AT NORFOLK

Surgeon From Sea Raider Has Been in Baltimore Contin-ing Medical Studies.

Admiral Beatty, of the Norfolk navy yard, today telegraphed that Dr. W. H. Schuler, a surgeon of the interned raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich, had returned from Baltimore to be confined with the other interned Germans. It was feared for a time that Dr. Schuler, studying medicine at Johns Hopkins, had also broken his parole. A second message caused a quick return.

While for the present the interned officers and men are kept on the vessels, the Kronprinz Wilhelm and the Eitel Friedrich, it is understood that Dr. Schuler will be allowed to continue his studies at Johns Hopkins if he desires to do so.

Nothing has been heard of the missing vessel Ebnese. Navy officials take it for granted the craft got lost to sea and off to the West Indies. The Ebnese has not been seen since it was reported, with the Coast Guard vessels.

U. S. CONTINGENT IS NEARLY WIPED OUT

Joffre's Great Champagne Advance Made Heavy Inroads
Upon Foreign Legion.

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS.

PARIS, Oct. 24 (By mail).—The foreign legion's American contingent was nearly wiped out in the great Champagne advance. One of the few who came out whole was John Freierick Brown, ordinarily known as "Nigger John" of Boston.

I saw him in a hospital here. "Where are you wounded, John?" I asked.

"I ain't wounded," grinned John. "I jes parlied. We was goin' up a slope with all kinds of things comin' down at us an' a great big German Jack Johnson hit me right in the middle of the back, an' 'lawdy me, mistah! I sho' thought ma days was over."

The Jack Johnson, the nurse explained, only bruised John's back and probably lacerated his legs, maybe temporarily.

Why He Joined Legion.

John used to work in an automobile house around Boston, and it seemed such a long cry from there to a Champagne battlefield that I asked him why he joined the foreign legion.

"Lawdy, man!" said John, through his perpetual smile. "I guess I allus did have mo' curiosity than intelli-gence."

"Still, you saw the big battle, that's something."

"Yosh! But it was something," said John. "When I left Paris we went to the Vosges first. Then they sent us to Champagne for the big mill. We started in the fight from a place just north of Swipes (Suippes)."

"That Saturday mornin' we started off in close formation, the Germans, and we was all mighty worried 'cause if any one of them shells had hit us it would a wiped out the whole company."

"Well, we was all mighty worried 'cause I says out loud, 'hopin' the officer would hear me, 'why don't that man spread us out, 'tiraillleur'—that's what the French call a skirmish line, you know—but the officer didn't pay no 'tention to me. Then all the fellows started sayin' the same thing, but the officer didn't change his mind till he got good and ready."

"But after a while he did order us to spread out an' we shoo did obey. For comin' down that hill was a whole arsenal full of machine gun bullets an' rifle bullets an' cannon balls an' chunks of dirt and everything."

Heads Naturally Sag.

"The officer told us to entrench and keep our heads down, but he didn't need to—our heads just naturally sagged all by their own selves."

"Ever once and a while we'd get up an' run for water. When we got to the top of the hill the Germans got skeered an' bent backward. We kept after them till finally we got caught in a pocket where we had machine guns in front of us an' on both sides an' shells bustin' in the middle."

"That's where I got mine. They told us to lay down flat and keep under them mitrailleur bullets—that's what the French call a machine gun—but I jest wanted say yuh simply can't duck them bullets; they seem to kinder hop, skip, and jump along the ground."

"When the Jack Johnson got me in the back, 'Oh Lawdy,' I said to mahself, 'I guess I earn't that cent-a-day all right now, but the future look mighty dark.'"

"How many days were you in the fight?" I asked.

"Jus' a little portion of one day was enough to hold me," said John.

Bacon For Lure.

"What other Americans were in the battle with you?"

"To tell yo' the honest truth, mistah," said John, "Ah didn't have time to look around and see. I was fairly busy keepin' my back of one fren' from gettin' lost from another."

"Just then the nurse came in with lunch."

"Dat an' some food!" cried John, wretched in smiles. "Jes smell dat! If General Joffre'll listen to me, he can end de war in half a day. Jes set a million plates of ric bacon along the top of de French trenches, an' de Germans'll jes natchally crawl ovah an' beg to surrender."

"Of the Americans in the Foreign Legion, John finally remembered that he had heard William Dugan, of Albany, N. Y., and Christopher Charles, of Brooklyn, were missing, as were several others, and that Jack Casey, former cartoonist, of San Francisco, had been wounded in the foot.

"In the legion," he said, "they have all sorts of charms to bring good luck, but I reckon the left hind foot of a grass-yard rabbit we Americans use is about the best of all."

"What makes you think so?" I asked.

"Ah'm heah 'ain't Ah?" said John.

ATHENA KNIT UNDERWEAR

Here are the features that give Athena its comfort, its daintiness and its tailored fit.

Sloping Shoulders and Sleeves
Conform to the shoulders without wrinkling under arms.

Perfect Shoulder-Stay
Keeps garment from stretching across the shoulder, and holds sleeve in place.

Curved Armhole
Brings arm seams to the natural curve of the shoulder and holds garment snugly and smoothly up under arm, doing away with unnecessary cloth.

Three-Cornered Gusset
Is so shaped as to relieve the usual strain at the thigh. Insures greater comfort and longer wear.

Low-Neck Sleeveless
Just as a woman is fuller across the bust than the back, so this garment is made with extra fullness in front.

Patent Seat
This consists of a plait on each side of the back, instead of extra cloth in the middle where it causes discomfort. Always stays closed and allows sufficient room, sitting or standing.
